What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is outstanding

Safeguarding is effective. Staff create a culture of vigilance where children's safety and welfare are central to everything they do. Highly effective safeguarding policies and procedures underpin daily practice and help to ensure children are protected from harm. Staff have an excellent understanding of the procedures to follow in the event of a child protection concern or an allegation made against a member of staff. Exceptionally precise tracking of children's progress helps to quickly identify gaps in their learning, and strategies are put in place to narrow these. The manager uses her excellent knowledge, skills and expertise to coach and mentor staff and carries out regular supervision meetings to manage their performance. The manager is extremely keen to invite professional artists and musicians into the nursery to work with children, helping to enhance their creative skills even further.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is outstanding

Babies and children thrive and are extremely motivated to learn in this outstanding nursery. Highly effective one-to-one support is provided for children who have special educational needs and/or disabilities when necessary, which helps them to reach their full potential. Staff make excellent use of puppets and props to bring songs and rhymes to life. This has an extremely positive effect on helping all children, including those who speak English as an additional language, to make rapid progress in their speaking and listening skills. Children learn new words, such as over, under and through, when they act out their favourite story. Babies and children are immersed in an excellent range of opportunities to make marks in a variety of different materials. Babies and toddlers are highly motivated as they explore paint and cornflour with their hands and fingers. Pre-school children put their names on a board to sign in on arrival and more-able children write their name on a list. This helps them to be extremely well prepared for school.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are outstanding

Babies and children are extremely happy and well settled in the nursery. Toddlers and pre-school children demonstrate high levels of independence as they manage their own personal care needs in readiness for school. They help to set tables, serve themselves at lunchtime and use knives and forks with remarkable competence for their age. Children relish the time they spend outside when they take part in exercises and are eager to show off their skills as they stretch, balance, jump and climb. Staff are excellent role models and teach children right from wrong. This helps children to develop strong friendships and a very secure understanding of acceptable behaviour.

Outcomes for children are outstanding

All children make high rates of progress in their learning. This includes children who have special educational needs and/or disabilities, those who receive funding and children who speak English as an additional language. They increasingly show high levels of self-control during activities and confidence in social situations. Children acquire an excellent range of skills that helps to give them a firm foundation for later learning and the eventual move to school.
